Community Event

The San Diego School of Oom Yung Doe offered a Halloween Safety Workshop on Thursday, October 28, 2010 at its Clairemont location with the goal of helping parents in the community prepare their kids for a safe and enjoyable trick-or-treat holiday.

The enthusiastic attendees listened attentively as special guest, Sgt. Daniel Higdon of the San Diego Police Department, took them through the basics of safety. As a native to San Diego that grew up in the neighborhood, he was happy to be able to come to the Oom Yung Doe School to teach a new generation of Clairemont youngsters. Safety Basics included:

Look both ways before crossing the street to check for cars and trucks.

Always let your parents know where you are. Don't talk to strangers, even if they have candy or puppies.

And many more tips including how to yell "No!" and run to your parents as a self defense.

The young attendees also took advantage of the opportunity to ask Police Sgt. Higdon general questions, which answered thoroughly and with a good sense of humor. Head Instructor Maurice Vera Commented, "Sgt. Higdon has brought a serious, educational event and made it interactive and fun. I particularly liked how he quizzed all the kids at the end just to make sure they all remembered. Which they did, by the way."
